Why do background checks on your Employees?

As an employer, you are entitled to know who you are hiring before you tender a job offer. Additionally, you are legally obligated to know the backgrounds of the people you hire. Failure to conduct thorough background checks puts you and your company at risk, creating a negligent hiring liability that can threaten the future of your business. Although you carry business liability insurance, you should be aware many policies do not cover negligent hiring. Before assuming your insurance would protect you, check with your agent.

For your protection, Employee Background Check services are confined to careful searches of legally available public records. There is never an invasion of a prospective employee's privacy. You will likely discover our employee background check service provides you with quality and economical protection.
